Adult Caddisfly Occurrence Scheme

Background

For as long as I can remember I have had an interest in insects, as a boy I would spend my summer holidays catching butterflies, hunting down grasshoppers and feeding hapless flies to hungry spiders. When I started fly-fishing a detailed study of the insects that the fish I was trying to catch actually fed on, was for me, just a natural development. I have since spent many years collecting and studying the mayflies (Ephemeroptera) and stoneflies (Plecoptera). Obviously, knowledge gained from these studies has helped my fly-fishing.

Around 20 years ago my curiosity started to turn to the world of caddisflies (Trichoptera) but my fly-fishing books had only the briefest of information and I wanted to know much more. From 1993 until 2008 I had the great fortune to fly-fish with various fly-fishing teams representing England in many different countries. During my travels and fishing at these events I have met with anglers from all over the world some of which also had a keen interest in the entomological aspect of the sport. From these gatherings it soon became obvious that, with the adult caddisflies especially, the UK fly-fisherman's understanding was full of huge gaps.

In the spring of 2006 I had a letter printed in Fly-Fishing & Fly-Tying, a popular and informative UK based fly-fishing magazine. In this letter I appealed for help from the readers, I needed them to catch and send me any adult caddisflies they came across whilst out fishing. My idea was then to identify these specimens and create a database of where & when our different adult caddisfly species are on the wing, the aim being to get a better understanding of adult caddisflies and their relationship with the sport of fly-fishing here in the UK. This was the birth of the Adult Caddisfly Occurrence Scheme.

Since the scheme started I have had many thousands of individual adult caddisfly samples sent in and the database has grown steadily. I have also enrolled other "collectors" (who are not anglers); these have included my family & friends and members of various Natural History Societies. To be honest anyone who has shown even the slightest interest has been roped in! This has expanded the areas from which I receive samples to beyond that of the fly-fishing related sites, as a result, an even greater variety of species started to come through.

Each year all the data is sent to Dr Ian Wallace (from The National Trichoptera Recording Scheme), the National Biodiversity Network, the Freshwater Biological Association, the Riverfly Partnership, Buglife (The Invertebrate Conservation Trust), my local natural history society (Sorby), everyone who sends in the samples and anyone else who just asks.

2016 - Brief Review

2016 has been a milestone year for the Adult Caddisfly Occurrence Scheme because it is now ten years since I launched it and, believe me, a lot of caddis have passed under the bridge since then!

It all started because of a simple, yet niggling, question that I had buzzing around in my head about these amazing insects. The question was this; as fly-fisherman, what type of caddisflies did we have living in the waters where we were fishing and at what time of year were their respective flight periods? To find some answers to this question I needed actual samples of adult caddisflies from up and down the land that I could analyse and record. Hence, The Adult Caddisfly Occurrence Scheme was born and it was not long before I was getting samples from many anglers up and down the land. However, it then snowballed and now I get samples from all types of water bodies and all types of people, not just those in the world of fly-fishermen.

So what are the findings of this past ten years of study shown? Well as you will imagine there is simply not the space here to give you all the details. But, to give you a flavour, I have analysed well over 12,000 individual caddisfly adults, for each and every one of these samples I have been able to record its species name, its sex, where it was collected, the capture method used and in many (but not all) cases other details such as the time of day it was caught and the weather conditions at the time. The total number of species the scheme has recorded to date is 142. One of these species is a new species to the British list; this was Synagapetus dubitans that I found in September 2010 simply by chance while sweep netting a tiny spring stream in the heart of Wensleydale in North Yorkshire. As you can imagine this then lead to another study to work out why it was there and where else it could be found – yes another report I need to get written up because that study has proved to be fascinating! Clearly with so many records this past ten years I have also been able to put a lot of dots on maps, all my records get passed on to Dr Ian Wallace and slowly but surely all is getting uploaded to the NBN (National Biodiversity Network) gateway. All the records also go to the FBA (Freshwater Biological Association), all the people who send in samples, and basically anyone else who just asks.

Back with the main Adult Caddisfly Occurrence Scheme results for 2016; the number of sample tubes sent in to be analysed was, as in previous years very impressive. This gave me the job of having to check over 1000 individual adult caddisflies, each one identified and catalogued. The scheme recorded 90 species in 2016.

Chart A lists the caddisflies in alphabetical order, when more than one sample of a particular species has been found they are themselves listed in "date occurred" order. Chart B shows the data with sample supplier names in alphabetical order, if you have sent in samples you will find all your results together here.

During 2016 I once again received support from the Cressbrook & Litton Fly-Fishers Club (club website is at: www.cressbrookandlittonflyfishers.co.uk ), their support has helped me greatly with the ever increasing postal charges and the costs of new sample tubes.

Last, but by no means least, a huge thank you to everyone who has sent in samples, not just this past year but way back to 2006. Without you the scheme simply would not exist. And, also my very sincere thanks to Aki Rinne, Dr Ian Wallace and my good friend (and fellow Trichoptera recorder) Andrew Dixon, to name but three, for their help and support this past ten years. Without their help, and encouragement I would probably have given up long ago.

Stuart Crofts, January 2017.

Adult Caddisfly Occurrence Scheme 2017

- If you are already a collector and want to continue to do so during 2017 you do not have to do anything other than just read the notes below as a reminder of how to deal with any samples you get (if you have no tubes left then please let me know so I can send some more to you).
- If you are not yet involved with the scheme but would like to take part then please drop me an email (or a letter) so I can send you some collecting tubes and simple instructions.
- If you no longer want to be part of the scheme then please return any tubes you have not used with a note and I can remove your details from my database.

Adult Caddisfly Collecting Notes

If you get any adult caddisflies (but not the larvae) just put them live into a tube. As soon as possible put this into a domestic deep freeze for about 2 or 3 minutes. This is considered a humane way to immobilise/kill an adult caddisfly, but please don't leave them in too long as they will fall apart! Next, fill the tube with either neat vodka (or similar clear spirit such as gin), or a 50/50 mix of isopropyl alcohol and water, any of these will preserve the caddisflies until they can be identified. However, do not use neat isopropyl alcohol, meths or surgical spirit in any form, all these will desiccate a caddisfly making it very difficult to work with while I am trying to confirm its identity.

Write on a small slip of paper (see "Helpful Hints & Tips") in pencil, where (the approximate location) and when (the time & date) you caught the sample along with your name. Put this in the tube with the caddisfly samples (alcohol will have no effect on either the paper or writing in pencil). Please do not stick a label on the outside of the tube as these often just fall off.

Drop the tube back in the post to me with your name and address along with any other notes of interest on the capture. I can then post back another empty tube in return. You can put the tube in any type of strong envelope (they do not need to be padded), the tubes are very tough and will not leak. You will need to put, at the very least, a "large letter" stamp on the envelope due to its thickness with a tube enclosed, but, if in doubt get the package checked at the Post Office before sending.

I do not get much chance to analyse samples until the long winter evenings, hence the reason to preserve them in alcohol.

You can expect many different types of adult caddisfly to be on the wing from March to the end of November. They range in size from 3mm to nearly 30mm and we have 200 very varied species, most are found near water but they can turn up anywhere, some are very common and others incredibly rare. So, even if you only think you have one send it along for me to check. Additionally, don't worry if you think you have caught the same type twice, again please send it along, this information is useful for the "flight period data".

At the year-end and after all the samples have been identified I will put together an annual review. A copy of the review and data will then be sent to you, from this you will be able to see the species you caught and sent in.

Helpful Hints & Tips

You can put several caddis samples in one tube as long as they are from the same venue. Do not forget to use pencil on the slip, ink dissolves in alcohol!

National Grid Reference (NGR)

It is preferable to send along a six figure National Grid Reference (NGR) along with the approximate sample location name.

To check you have worked out more-or-less the correct locations of a sample you are sending there are now good websites available. Here is one that I find very useful to check locations online:

<http://wtp2.appspot.com/wheresthepath.htm>

This is a fantastic site with a split screen showing a map and satellite view side by side so you really can see where you are, the control panel can be a bit tricky to use but you will soon get the hang of it. This is a free website but you can donate to help keep it running.
